

Family's Strong Faith, Vision Lead to Success

Starting a business from scratch is not an easy process. Just ask Kingdom Kare Child Development Center owner Mark Hudspeth and his extended family. Through their faith and an unparalleled drive to succeed, this center has grown from four children to one of the top child care centers in Blount County.

"It was a family decision. Me and my wife (Connie) and my sister (Bethany Smith) and our other sister (Trena Vann) and her daughters," said Hudspeth. "Bethany, she's the director, was in childcare for eight years before we decided to do one ourselves. I was getting ready to retire from the military and we were trying to figure out something to do for a business. We decided we could all work together and have our kids with us. It's worked out pretty good for us the last five years."

They opened their first center in Maryville, Tenn., at 2114 East Broadway in 2007 and behind a lot of sleepless nights, sweat, tears and a drive to succeed, Kingdom Kare slowly grew. It was the passion of the family and volunteers that ultimately led Kingdom Kare to finally enjoy success.

And now, they are opening their second center at 1833 Wright Road in Alcoa, Tenn. The grand opening is set for Monday, June 25 at 10 a.m. The public is invited to attend.

Years later, as the family talked about all the possibilities, obstacles and challenges of starting a business, they knew that it would only be successful if they put their faith first.

"When God presents you with a challenge, he rarely tells you the details on how to do it. He does give help and strength, and sometimes a big push to get you going," noted Hudspeth.

While you can put faith first in any business, they decided to go all out, not just opening another Christian center, but actually showing and teaching the love of Jesus.

"The first couple of years were tough as me and my wife along with several others came in and worked for free. It took a long time to get going. While I was at the base, I was doing the books at night and my wife was working cleaning the classrooms. Our sister was working two jobs. I don't know what the secret to success was except hard work."

Now with a solid foundation built at the Maryville center which has more than 100 children, Hudspeth felt it was time to expand into a second facility that will more than double the number kids attending.

"We grew by word of mouth. We've been real blessed to have families come in that liked what they were getting and they'd tell their friends and it just went from there. Our Maryville center filled up quickly and we don't like turning people away. With the new center in Alcoa, we will be able to continue to help more families."

With the opening of the Alcoa center, Hudspeth and the staff will be doing double time to keep things running smoothly.

"The rooms are enclosed at the new center, whereas the others are more open. Things will pretty much run the same. We'll have the same director and the same people doing things at both centers; a lot of driving back and forth. We'll have video surveillance at both places. When you've got a successful thing, you don't want to change anything."

And anything worth doing usually isn't going to be easy.

Kingdom Kare Grand Opening

Monday, June 25
10-11:30 a.m.
1833 Wright Road
Alcoa, Tenn.

Hudspeth was able to take the idea of starting a business to the Blount County Chamber of Commerce who referred him to the Tennessee Small Business Development center. After attending a free class and being assigned a counselor to help in the planning stages, a business plan was developed. TSBDC continued to help with the feasibility study and budget analysis. From vision to opening, it took about eight months. Without the expert advice and free help, the dream may not have happened.

"There are a lot of businesses that do not succeed and some of those failures may have been prevented if the owners had taken advantage of the free help in Blount County," said Hudspeth.

The idea for Kingdom Kare came to Hudspeth after attending a church service two hours from home. After some friendly persuading from his family, he finally went. Once there, he was uplifted inside after hearing God's word. But he left feeling a bit puzzled as to how to accomplish the goal.

"For weeks my family tried to understand the meaning of what was said," said Hudspeth. "The funny thing about a prophecy is you can't understand it until after it is completed."
